I have read many story of successful entrepreneurship in the world. All of them really inspire me because they have started their business through the small things and then it develop from their intelligence until become successful entrepreneur in the worldwide. Therefore I chose the one that I inspire the most because it takes part of my career and because of him, I want to develop my skills in this area in order to make a small business when I finish my study in the college. So, I would like to choose Mark Zuckerberg, who is the founder of social media named Facebook, becomes my role model as well as inspiration. The best thing that I love from him is staying humble even though he have become a famous guy in the world.

Mark Elliot Zuckerberg is the most successful American computer programmer and an internet entrepreneur. He is undoubtedly one of the most renowned names on the list of world's most successful entrepreneurs. A self-made billionaire at a young age of 24, the dynamic social honcho has given us all a new horizon to the world of virtual reality- The Facebook. With the advent of his social networking site, his dream of making the world a much smaller place has indeed taken shape.

Who would have thought that what started off as a small project in his college dorm room would turn out to be a massive breakthrough in such a short span of time? As of 2016, the global business of Facebook was reported to be $27.63 billion of revenue and the site was being used by 1.86 billion people of the world. In his numerous public appearances, he has thrown light on some meticulous steps every entrepreneur must take to reach the zenith of success setting his success story and entrepreneur skills as a leading example. Though Mark Zuckerberg's secret of success has endless pointers but let us have a look into 7 most prominent key tactics that made Mark Zuckerberg successful.

A Specific Vision, Mark Zuckerberg had a clear sense of vision in his mind before starting off his venture. This is one of most prominent reason due to which Mark Zuckerberg faced problems so easily and became successful. He was focused on what change his business idea would bring to the world. He wanted to create a social networking space with the vision of connecting the world and he was so inclined towards it that he even rejected big investment and partnership offers from big investment companies. Mark Zuckerberg even rejected offers from Microsoft and AOL during his studies to pursue his dream of higher studies and becoming an entrepreneur. He further adds that knowing what he intended to build was the key to shape his business into a successful venture.

Quoting himself as more than just a 'one-hit wonder', Zuckerberg has envisioned to make the use of internet a reality even in the developing nations as part of his interest in the future of human rights and social causes. In his attempt to change the global business landscape, he has met various leaders from around the globe in order to extend his technological prowess to address various social issues concerning the world today.

Building a Strong Team, Mark Zuckerberg holds a high belief in teamwork as a tool to get things done in any organization. He emphasizes the need to build a strong team in an organization as most of the things being accomplished around us are a result of constant toil and effort of dozens of people working in a cohesive environment. Even during his college days, he held a competition of hacking among other students to select the best and most productive coders for his company. Even now, he himself takes interviews of candidates in his own way by taking them to a park and asking questions. I want to follow his path to become a successful person and smart to choose the best way. Thank you
